

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

FROM THE PREFACE

TO FIRST EDITION.

It is to answer the increasing calls on library workers for "a good story to read to my school" that the following graded list for reading aloud has been prepared. The practical utility of such a list should be self-evident, since the practice of reading aloud at the opening or the closing of the school session is becoming almost universal, and with such good reason.

Many children are absolutely dependent on their teachers for the cultivation of any taste for good literature, without which the simple ability to read may prove as much of a curse as a blessing. Then, too, many children go into the school room out of disturbed and discordant homes, and they find it easier to swing into step for the day's work if they are first lured into an attitude of comradeship through the pages of a good story. "All the world loves a good story," so it is not strange that the tense, overcharged atmosphere of a school room at the close of the day should be relieved and cleared, that some vim and energy should be thrown into tasks otherwise grown irksome, by the promise of the teacher to read aloud if all the work is done by such and such an hour.

The making of the above list is no attempt to compile a graded list of the world's best stories. It does not attempt to include every book which may be read aloud with pleasure and profit in the class rooms. It aims rather to give a list of some twenty or thirty books which will be found enjoyable to both teachers and pupils, and will leave the children with some idea of the best juvenile literature, and to give them stories which will leave behind in their minds a "kind of fine and wholesome feeling" for the whole day.

If the following list proves suggestive and helpful to the librarian's best friend—the teacher—if it is the means of lifting her and her school room out of the humdrum into a real comradeship with her boys and girls as they all go off together into the enchanted land of story books, we shall be satisfied. Perhaps, in the long, long years it will be these "special times" that will affect most definitely the life of the child, and this recreation of the school day may prove well worth while,

"Silly gardener, summer goes
And winter comes with pinching toes,
When in the garden bare and brown
You must lay your barrow down.

© 13415 L. S.

Well now, and while the summer stays,
To profit by these garden days;
O, how much wiser it would be
To play at Indian wars with me!"

or else to sail the high seas with Blackbeard or Odysseus, to stand with throbbing hearts beside the minute-men at Concord, or to live one happy day in a serene and contented home, all through the magic spell of a story book.

HARRIOT E. HASSLER.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION.

The Graded List of Stories for Reading Aloud was first issued by the Public Library Commission of Indiana in 1908, and enlarged and revised by Miss Carrie E. Scott in 1910.

For the third edition, the number of titles has been reduced to fifteen for each grade, and some minor changes made, introducing some later books not included before. The reception accorded the former issues implies that there is still a need for this type of list.

The List for the Story Teller has been carefully revised and is supplemented by outlines for Cycles of Stories, covering the great Epics and some other great stories. Some of these outlines were originally worked out by members of the staff of the children's department of the Queens Borough Public Library of the City of New York.

A word of suggestion to any inexperienced story tellers who may use the list as a basis of story telling rather than for reading aloud may be timely. Use the books about story telling to learn methods and to benefit by the experience of other story tellers as freely as you will, but in selecting stories to tell go back to the strong, simple old forms and do not use the re-told versions. In other words, for such material as old folk tales, go to Mr. Joseph Jacobs' "English fairy tales" and learn from him, rather than from an adapted version in any volume about story telling. Otherwise you will be imposing only a pale shadow—and often a distorted shadow—of the original on your trusting audience and will have paid them for their trusting attention in counterfeit coin, when you could have given them pure gold. If you have learned that you can tell stories—some people cannot—spend your free reading time for a season in preparing some of the great stories outlined in the appended Cycles. Read as much as you can—not as little as possible—of good versions or translations of the stories you would tell until you become imbued with the spirit of the people who thus immortalized their ideal of heroism. Then, and then only, will you realize the real satisfaction of story telling.

"The rest may reason and welcome; 'tis we musicians know."

The two Indian Cycles are given in the hope that they may suggest wider use of that rich and picturesque folk lore which is the peculiar inheritance of the boys and girls of America.

HARRIOT E. HASSLER.

Inventions by Gutenberg, Palissy, Galileo, Watt, Arkwright, Whitney, Fulton, Davy, Stephenson, Morse, McCormick, Howe, Bell, Marconi, and the Wrights.

Kieffer, Harry. Recollections of a drummer boy. Houghton, $1.40.

A real drummer boy's experience in the Army of the Potomac.

Lang, Andrew, ed. True story book. Longmans, $1.00.

Read: A boy among red Indians. Story of Grace Darling. Captain Snelgrove and the pirates. The Spartan three hundred; and others.

Matthews, J. B., comp. Poems of American patriotism. School reading. Scribner, $0.50.

A well chosen collection of patriotic poems, chronologically arranged. Brief notes have been prefixed to many of the poems, making plain the occasion of their origin and removing any chance of obscurity of allusion. Oregon.

Scudder, H. E. George Washington; an historical biography. Riverside school library. Houghton, $0.40.

One of the best lives of Washington for young readers, and among the best of one volume lives of Washington for readers of any age. Larned.

Sharp, D. L. A watcher in the woods. Century, $0.60.

Studies of bird life, muskrats, rabbits, and toads.

New York.

Stockton, F. R. Buccaneers and pirates of our coasts. Macmillan, $1.50.

Contents: The story of a pearl pirate.—The surprising adventures of Bartholemy Portuguez.—The story of L'Olonnois the cruel.—The battle of the sand bars.—The pirate of the buried treasure, and other tales of the "black flag."

Pittsburgh.

Tappan, E. M. When knights were bold. Houghton, $2.00.

"Pictures of the manner of life and habits of thought of the people who lived between the 8th and 15th centuries."

Includes: Page, squire, and knight. Knight's arms and armor. Jousts and tournaments. How to capture a castle. Daily life in a castle. Life on a manor. Pilgrimages and crusades. Military orders, monks, and monasteries. Hermits, friars, and missionaries. Life in town. Merchant guilds and craft guilds. How goods were sold. Schools and literature. Science and medicine. Architecture and the arts.

Warner, C. D. Being a boy. Houghton, $1.20.

Experiences of a boy on a New England farm.

GRADES 8-9.

Beard, C. D. Dan Beard's animal book and camp fire stories. 1910 ed. Moffat, $2.00.

Delightful to read aloud. Full of the author's own magnetism and his keen unaffected interest in his subject.

Bullen, F. T. Cruise of the Cachalot round the world after sperm whales. Appleton, $1.35.

Actual experience on a South Sea whaler.

Dickens, Charles. Pickwick papers. Macmillan, $1.00.

Mr. Pickwick and his valet, Sam Weller, number among the immortals. The whole book expresses exuberant youth, force, and a mind abandoned to the comic view. L. & I.

Read chapter 30, Sam Weller skates, and chapter 34, The Trial of Pickwick, if no others.

Grinnell, G. B. Trails of the pathfinders. Scribner, $1.50.

Alexander Henry, Jonathan Carver, Alexander Mackenzie, Lewis and Clark, Zebulon M. Pike, Alexander Henry, the younger, Ross Cox, The commerce of the prairies, Samuel Parker, Thomas J. Farnham, Fremont.

Hagenbeck, Carl. Beasts and men. Longmans, $2.00.

Almost better than a visit to a "zoo" for children or for adults. Herr Hagenbeck's natural refinement and his own beauty of character show in his attitude toward his friends from the forest and jungle.

Hugo, Victor. Jean Valjean; ed. by S. E. Wiltse. Ginn, $0.90.

The most intensely interesting section of Les Misérables.

Hurl, E. M. Michelangelo. Riverside art series. Houghton, $0.50.

This volume, like the others of the series, contains a collection of fifteen reproductions with an interpretation of each, a portrait of the artist, a brief introduction, and note on books of reference.

Irving, Washington. Knickerbocker history of New York. Hudson ed. Putnam, $1.50.

Comic history in which fact and droll fiction are inextricably mingled. Introduces a good deal of kindly satire of the old Dutch inhabitants of Manhattan Island. Baker.

Kipling, Rudyard. Kim. Doubleday, $1.35 net.

A wonderful glimpse into boy-life and grown-up life, in India.

Plummer, M. W. Stories from the Chronicle of the Cid. Holt, $1.25.

Here Miss Plummer brings back out of the far-away 11th century, a living Cid—loyal to his king; dutiful to his aged father; valiant in battle; ready to minister with his own hands to the leper by the wayside; gentle in his home; faithful to his God—well might the Spanish call him The Perfect One.

Price, O. W. The land we live in. Small, $1.50.

An excellent book on conservation of forests, etc., in the United States.

Riis, Jacob. Making of an American. Macmillan, $1.50.

An interesting autobiography of a very active and useful American.

Stevenson, R. L. Treasure Island. Biographical ed., cloth. Scribner, $1.00.

A thrilling pirate story written well enough to be classed as a masterpiece of English. Good to read to an inattentive school.

White, S. E. The forest. Doubleday, $1.50.

Read in the spring when the longing to go out into "the wet, wild woods" takes hold of the pupils.

Hawthorne, Nathaniel. Twice told tales. Riverside literature series. Houghton, $0.60.

Imaginative renderings of traditions from pre-Revolutionary times. Baker.

Read: The gray champion. A rill from the town pump. The great carbuncle. The ambitious guest.

FOR THE STORY TELLER.

Bryant, S. C. How to tell stories to children. Houghton, $1.00.

Discusses advantage of telling instead of reading stories; the aims of story telling; the kinds of stories best suited to aid development. Adds some tales especially suited to children and a list of books for the story teller.

Ebbutt, M. I. Hero myths of the British race. Crowell, $2.00.

Valuable because it retains the atmosphere, vigor and power of these tales of Beowulf; Havelock; Roland; Cuchulain; King Horn; Robin Hood; Hereward, and others.

Gould, F. J. Conduct stories . . . for the moral instruction of children. Sonnenschein, $1.00.

Interesting as presenting a different method from that most commonly accepted among thoughtful American students of story-telling, emphasizing as it does the story as primarily a method of teaching ethics.

Grinnell, G. B. Blackfoot lodge tales. Scribner, $1.75.

Contains: "Indians and their stories," pref. p. IX-XV; (Eleven) Stories of adventure, p. 3-90; (Seven) Stories of ancient times, p. 93-134; (Twelve) Stories of Old Man, p. 137-173; Story of the Three Tribes (customs, social organization, religion, etc.), p. 177-300.

Keyes, A. M. Stories and story-telling. Appleton, $1.25.

Contains: Story telling—kinds of stories to tell; principles of the art of telling stories; getting the story; telling the story; the child's part in story telling. Stories—Fairy and folk tales and twelve stories by the author; also, some very short stories.

At times literary tone is sacrificed to intensity of interest. There is a happy use of jingles in fairy tales.

Lyman, Edna (afterwards Mrs. Scott). Story telling; what to tell and how to tell it. McClurg, $0.75.

One of the most valuable books for the story teller. Stories arranged in "Programs." Contains some helpful cycles of stories, and a list of "Books . . . for the story teller." Has a literary tone and a fidelity to the original spirit of the stories given too often lacking in books on story telling.

National Playground Association. Report of Committee on story telling . . . Annie Carroll Moore, chairman. In The Playground, v. 4, No. 5—Aug., 1910. p. 160-182.

Contains pithy and suggestive reports from about ten cities where stories are told in Playgrounds. The Program of 12 stories told to a club of 80 boys who were not only insubordinate but had to be taught to listen; and the list of "Fifty stories for the Playground" will prove suggestive and helpful.

Olcott, F. J. Good stories for great holidays. Houghton, $2.00.

"One hundred and twenty stories for seventeen holidays," arranged by holidays from New Year's Day throughout the year. A goodly number of short stories are included. Over one half of the stories have been adapted for the use of the story teller.

Additional reference lists . . . and indexes by subject, by title and by author, are added.

Partridge, E. M. and G. E. Story telling in school and home; a study in educational aesthetics. Sturgis & Walton, $1.25.

Lacks the spontaneity of Miss Lyman's work. Interesting but so marred by self consciousness that it is not indispensable.

Shedlock, M. L. Eastern stories and legends for narration or later reading in schools. Routledge, $0.50.

Stories of the Buddha; a quaint mixture of humor and make-believe and earnestness. Not especially attractive to children in its direct appeal, but well worth the story-teller's effort to make it better known. The author is one of the most deservedly successful story tellers in England or America.

Scudder, H. E., ed. The children's book. Houghton, $2.50.

Contains more material, in good form, for the use of the story teller than any other one volume known. Includes fables, fairy tales, ballads, Gulliver's travels, Greek legends and many other groups.

Skinner, C. M. Myths and legends of the flowers, trees, fruits and plants. Lippincott, $1.50.

Contains many legends hard to find elsewhere, arranged alphabetically by name of plant or flower. Excellent to use for story telling for classes studying botany. Legends of about 175 plants as well as five interesting introductory chapters about plants and flowers.

Steel, F. A. Tales of the Punjab. Macmillan, $1.50.

Story telling in India, pref. p. 5-13.

The stories told were learned by the author from the little Indian story-tellers "in story-telling time," after the sun has set and the villages become alive with voices of children telling these old tales—"tales that were told in the sunrise of the world and will be told in its sunset."

Thomsen, Mrs. Gudrun Thorne. East o' the Sun and West o' the Moon. Row, Peterson & Co., $0.60.

An exceptionally good collection for the use of the story teller. Contains stories which have been told many times by the editor, stories which are in themselves "only the very best from the rich stores of Norwegian folk-lore." Good for 3rd-6th Grades.

Wyche, R. T. Some great stories and how to tell them.
Newson, $1.00.

One of the early thoughtful books on the subject. The chapter "Use of the story—an experiment" gives an interesting account of story telling in a country school in the South. Better for the study of theory and methods than as a source of stories for the story teller, as it is a perilous thing to attempt to retell a retold story with any hope of keeping much of its original vitality and fire.
